LONDON—(AP)—The United States state department relaxed its restrictions today to permit American citizens in Britain desiring to return home to travel on belligerent ships. Traffic Court to Open Today, Only One Case Docketed

Mansfield's first afternoon traffic court scheduled for this afternoon was destined to be brief unless there is a sudden influx of traffic law violators at the last minute.

Only one case was slated for hearing before Municipal Judge G. E Kalbfleisch. It is that of Frank Lee Smith, Lexington, R. D. 1. Smith was arrested yesterday by state highway patrolmen on a charge of speeding on Lexington avenue and was released after furnishing $50 bond.

Although the city only had one case scheduled for hearing the county juvenile court had less at its traffic court called for yesterday.

No juvenile traffic offenders were booked to apppear according to Probate Judge Stuart H. Cramer, who will conduct juvenile traffic court each Tuesday.

Inauguration in Mansfield of a weekly court for traffic law violators developed from the special Mansfield traffic squad and it places the city alongside metropolitan centers in its methods of dealing with traffic violators.

Special Board Gets Rail Dispute

15,000 Goal Set for Red Cross Drive

Biggest Membership In County's History to Be Sought.

Richland county chapter of the Red Cross was preparing today to launch the biggest membership campaign in its history after accepting the quota set up by national headquarters for the annual Roll Call opening Nov. 11, and ending Nov. 30.

The county quota of 15,000 exceeding last year's quota by 5,000, was adopted by the executive board yesterday afternoon, according to Milo W. Hieber, county chairman. Roll call last year, Hieber pointed out, produced a membership of 13,086, 3,086 over the quota of 10,000.

L. W. Birch, roll call chairman last year, will head the drive again this year, Hieber said.

Action also was taken by the executive board to finance the making of 400 sewing kits for Richland county selectees. The chapter heretofore has assembled and made the kits although the funds were provided by the Soldiers'-Citizens' committee.

Richland selectees are stepping up the number of monthly cases handled by the home service division which deals with disability, hospitalization, insurance, and other claims of men in service, ex-service men and their families, according to R. K. Clark, chairman of the home service division.

Of the 92 cases handled by the division during the months of July and August, 39 cases were prompted by the selectees themselves, their families or army officials. Most of the cases involving selectees had to do with inquiries regarding the men or the service which they were entering.

R. D. Iden, chairman of first aid and water safety, reported that 294 water safety certificates were issued during the past two months and that 40 persons received first aid certificates. He also announced that 95 persons had received first aid on the 10 occasions that the first aid tent was used.

HITS EXPANSION

SPAB Prohibits Building For 'Civilian Industry.'

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Industrial expansion to meet purely civilian demand was forbidden today by the supply priorities and allocations board if the planned expansion would require the use of large quantities of material critically needed for defense.

The policy was established by SPAB in the temporary denial of a proposal to expand the plant of the Tennessee Eastman corporation at Kingsport, Tenn., a manufacturer of plastics.

"Hundreds of similar applications are on hand," the board said, "and no single one can properly be granted until it is known how much of a drain on scarce materials would be involved in granting all of them."

'LEASE' CHARGES WORRY BRITAIN

London Promises To Prevent Misuse of Aid To Hinder U. S. Export Markets.

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—Britain, gravely concerned over charges that materials obtained from the United States under the lease-lend act were being used in direct competition with American industry in export markets, promised today to prevent such misuse and to restrict British exports.

The British government was concerned, among other things, over what its leaders called the "propaganda value to Germany" of these charges that American industry, after sacrificing to send raw materials to Britain under the lease-lend act, was being hit in foreign markets by competition with goods made from these materials.

The agreement with the United States was announced in a white paper and was said by a reliable source to be one of a series of steps planned "to prevent Germany from using lease-lend grumbling as the thin edge

Survivors Describe Sinking Of U. S. Freighter Near Suez

By GRATTAN P. McGROARTY
(UP Staff Correspondent)

ABOARD A BRITISH WARSHIP IN THE RED SEA—(Via Alexandria and London)—Officers and men of the American freighter Steel Seafarer said today that a big bombing plane appeared above them last Friday night, cut off its motors and, gliding down in the clear light of a full moon, loosed a bomb or aerial torpedo that semeed to lift the ship out of the water.

The missile struck amidships on the starboard side beneath the water line at 11.38 p. m. The ship's lights went out. All hands were piped into the lifeboats within five minutes. The Steel Seafarer sank in 20 minutes, two minutes after Capt. John Holliday of Baltimore, Chief Officer Ralph F. Pratt of New York City, Helmsman Robert Cartwright of Nantucket, Mass., and Wireless Operator James Abernethy of New York City, last to go, had lowered away.

They got off just in time to escape being caught in the swirling suction of the wrecked hulk.

Twelve men in one lifeboat were picked up by a Danish freighter. The other 24, in two boats, struggled for 12 hours through a heavy sea to a small rocky island 10 miles away and were picked up by this British warship, to be landed today at a Red Sea port.

All aboard were safe and none suffered any injury beyond slight scratches.

DECISION DUE

Election Board To Act on 257 Candidacies Tonight.

The 257 candidates for township and village offices who filed their petitions last week with the county board of elections will know tomorrow whether their names will go on the ballots at the November election.

Meeting tonight, the election board is scheduled to check the nominating petitions to determine if they contain the proper number of signatures and have been filled out according to requirements.

The board also will act on candidates' requests for withdrawal before the ballots are ordered. Every person for whom a petition was filed must sign the petition to indicate his acceptance of the nomination if the petition is satisfactory, board officials said.

Huge Order for Westinghouse Brightens Outlook for City

Mansfield business men generally were satisfied today that the $3,173,975 defense order for binoculars received yesterday by the Westinghouse plant will help the city through the winter without any serious let-down as a result of the curtailment of domestic production by the city's industrial plants.

John G. Routzon, secretary-manager of the Chamber of Commerce, said the order "definitely opens the door to more defense contracts for Mansfield plants."

He said many Mansfield firms were beginning to wonder about the future, but the huge order and its assurance that hundreds of workers will be kept on the job made the picture much brighter.

"It is a reward for sincere effort on the part of the industries, civic organizations and the Chamber of Commerce to get defense contracts for the city," he added.

Meanwhile, Westinghouse officials said it is uncertain when the necessary equipment to start the production of binoculars will be available. Orders for most of the machinery have been placed, but company representatives pointed out that the heavy demand for equipment of this type makes it difficult to predict when deliveries can be made. They indicated, however, that it probably would be at least two months before installation will start.

Plant officials are still awaiting the anticipated government order for curtailing production of electric refrigerators, ranges, and other appliances for home use. Although raw materials to go into domestic production are becoming increasingly difficult to obtain, the government so far has not actually clamped down on industrial plants here.

5-MAN UNIT ORDERED FOR FACTS PROBE

Action By President Delays Threat of Strikes Set Tomorrow, Monday.

HALTS MOVE 30 DAYS

President Says Disagreement Threatens To Interrupt Needed Transportation.

(By Associated Press)

HYDE PARK, N. Y.—President Roosevelt ordered the creation today of a board to investigate the facts in the dispute between most of America's railways and their employes—a dispute which threatens to stop rail operations at a time when vital defense materials are moving over the lines.

The personnel of the five-man board will be announced later.

The 900,000 employes of 14 non-operating unions had set 6 p. m. tomorrow for a strike and the 350,000 workmen of five operating brotherhoods had voted to go out next Monday.

Also involved are members of three organizations of railway express workers.

The fact-finding board has 30 days in which to report to the president, and no strike may become effective, under the railway labor act, until another 30 days after the report has been filed.

The national railway mediation board had been unable to reconcile the differences between the carriers and the men who run their lines.

The operating brotherhoods have been unyielding in a demand for a 30 per cent increase in the basic rates of pay. The non-operating unions wanted the basic hourly pay rate increased by 30 to 34 cents.

In his proclamation ordering a fact-finding board established, Mr. Roosevelt said, the disputes between the several groups of labor organizations and the railways "now threaten substantially to interrupt interstate commerce to a degree such as to deprive the country of essential transportation service."

Ordinarily a three-man board is

IT'LL STAY COOL

Fair Weather Forecast For Tomorrow; Mercury Hits 91.

The city's brief heat wave which sent the temperature up to 91 yesterday ended abruptly this morning after thundershowers left about a third of an inch of rain in the Mansfield area.

From a low of 65 this morning, the mercury climbed slowly to 72 at noon, and the weatherman said it will be cooler tonight and Thursday. Despite a brisk shower shortly before noon today, the forecast was for fair weather this afternoon and Thursday.

Yesterday's reading, one of the highest recorded here in September, gave the city an average of 78 for the day, 10 degrees above normal. It was warmer in other Ohio cities, however, Columbus and Cincinnati reporting 97.

Take Offensive In Center Area Near Smolensk

Germans Reported Falling Back With Heavy Losses; Hitler Orders Fall Of Leningrad at Any Cost; Nazis Report Major Aerial Assaults.

(By United Press)

A series of shattering, tank-led Red army blows on the eastern front and a surge of anti-Nazi outbreaks in Norway coincided today with reports that Adolf Hitler had ordered the speedy capture or destruction of Leningrad at any cost.

Russian counter-attacks, now developing into full fledged offensive threats, still were hammering into the German lines on the central sector, according to Moscow and London sources, and were estimated to have cost the Nazis some 80,000 men in recent days.

The Germans, falling back from Yelnya to or perhaps beyond the blackened ruins of Smolensk, were reported by Moscow to be in disorderly and swift retreat on some sectors, pursued by Russian tanks and airplanes. These dispatches said the Germans in several recent battles had lost more than 500 tanks, three cavalry squadrons, a great part of the 29th and 15th motorized divisions, and a total of close to 10,000 men in the latest battles in addition to 80,000 dead and wounded in the Yelnya sector.

The fighting led by Marshal Semyon Timoshenko in the area stretching from Gomel to Smolensk and thence northeastward was regarded in London as a grave threat to the German forces that have claimed the encirclement of Leningrad, which with its big naval bases at Kronstadt again was subjected to terrific aerial and long-range artillery bombardment.

The Russians also reported that they were fighting strongly along the lower Dnieper river, with the aid of gunboats that broke up German attempts to cross the river and smashed batteries on the west bank.

From the German side, it was stated that the Luftwaffe struck furiously at the three big Russian cities of Leningrad, Moscow and Odessa, seeking to break up communication lines and to destroy the defense guns and munitions plants of besieged Leningrad and Odessa. (Moscow said that the Germans failed in the raid on the Russian capital.)

The Luftwaffe attacks were described as "heavy" and it was claimed by the high command that the German forces again were seizing the initiative and attacking successfully all along the eastern front.

Leningrad's famous military parade ground has been reached by the German land units closing in on the city, according to Berlin, and the birthplace of the Bolshevik revolution will be "destroyed 100 per cent" if it is defended 100 per cent.

In the Far East, there appeared to be increasing prospects of an adjustment of Japan's relations with the United States and Brit-

NAZIS CLAMP DOWN ON OSLO

Order State of Emergency 'To Prevent Strikes,' Declare Reich Officials.

(By International News Service)

OSLO—(Via Berlin)—A state of emergency was declared in Oslo and surrounding territory by Reich Commissar Josef Terboven today as the result of activities by "Communist and Marxist elements."

The measure was made necessary, an official announcement said, because of efforts by trade unionists and executives to disturb labor peace and pave the way for strikes.

(Editor's note: Coincident with the announcement, a spokesman on the British radio remarked that Germany was deliberately emphasizing reports of her difficulties in occupied countries and against Soviet Russia "to hoodwink the democracies," according to a London broadcast picked up in New York by CBS. The Germans are attempting to bring about Anglo-American complacency and create a feeling there is no immediate need for aid to Russia, the commentator said.)

Inhabitants of Oslo and its rural districts were ordered to remain in their homes from 8 p. m. until 5 a. m., while all transportation except for the national railways will stop at 7:30 p. m. Restaurants and theaters will be compelled to close at 7 p. m.

Forbidding all meetings and demonstrations, Terboven announced that any persons violating the terms of the edict would be court-martialed.

Emergency measures taken included seizure of all radio sets.

German-controlled newspapers in Oslo charged that certain Norwegians had "overrated the extraordinary patience of the German authorities and acted as if England, instead of Germany, had occupied the country."

"The commissar's step represents the last warning to those elements who thus far have caused nothing but trouble to the Fatherland," one paper said.

"It is hoped that the Norwegian people, by remaining calm and thoughtful, will aid in bringing about speedy abolition of the state of emergency."

Wires Cut, Signal System on Pennsylvania Lines Periled

Pennsylvania railroad police today were investigating the severing of the company's communication and signal wires along the tracks near Loudonville which interrupted train and telegraph service for several hours Sunday night and early Monday.

While the company authorities were reluctant to describe the act as an attempt at sabotage, they said the wires obviously were cut by some one intent on malicious destruction of railroad property, possibly because they held a grudge against the railroad.

The signal system controlling the operation of trains and telegraph and telephone communication were disrupted when 21 of the 33 wires serving the Mansfield district were cut by the vandals, railroad police said.

While the damage was being repaired it was necessary to operate trains under slow orders over a 10-mile section of track between Mansfield and Loudonville. Partial communication service between stations was restored shortly after the damage was discovered, but service was not back to normal until Monday, it was revealed today.

Trains on the New York-Chicago main line through Mansfield operate under an electrically-controlled block system, enabling the road to handle a large number of fast trains safely and with the least delay.

URGES BOOST

Committee Asks Increase In Gasoline Price.

WASHINGTON — (INS) — A slight increase in retail gasoline prices to meet the eastern petroleum shortage was urged today by members of the special senate committee investigating the oil situation.

Sen. Maloney (D) Conn., chairman of the committee declared that oil companies should be permitted to charge approximately one-half to one cent per gallon more to compensate for higher oil transportation costs.

The refusal of the supply priorities and allocations board to give priority for metal to construct a pipe line from Texas to the New York area will force oil companies to rely largely on rail cars and tanker facilities. The board ruled that the steel is needed for war implements.

ain, although there still were no definite developments.

Reports from usually reliable sources in Shanghai said that the Japanese cabinet had approved preliminary negotiations directed toward a settlement of problems that had caused grave threats of conflict in the Pacific, chiefly Japanese protests against American war shipments to Russia and Japanese threats of new aggressions in the South seas

This, it was pointed out, would not mean that a settlement of a permanent nature had been reached or that the war danger suddenly would vanish. Instead, it was believed that all efforts were directed toward bringing about a gradual change in the Japanese position and a gradual shifting of Japan away from the Axis.

Principal cause of such a shift would be fear that Hitler would fail in his invasion of Russia and finally would be defeated by the Allied powers, but it was emphasized that there are strong militaristic and nationalistic elements in Japan which will oppose such a change in program.

Whether the more conservative naval leaders and business elements could overcome opposition to a settlement remained to be seen, but some hint may be given in a statement by Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoye which was originally scheduled for today and may be expected in the next day or two.

High Council Holds Talk with Emperor

TOKYO — (INS) — The Japanese privy council met in extraordinary session for two hours today under the presidency of Emperor Hirohito.

All phases of the international situation, with particular stress upon Japan's relations with the United States, were believed discussed.

War Minister Tojo reported on military affairs in Europe while General Okamoto of the Japanese general staff dealt at length with Japan's military position, especially in the light of the Russo-German war.

Admit Leningrad Has Contact with Russia

BERLIN — (AP) — Authorized German sources acknowledged today that Nazi forces had not yet succeeded in cutting Leningrad off completely from the rest of Russia and said the Soviet defenders were putting up a terrific battle.

An outlet from the hard-pressed city still exists across Lake Ladoga, these sources said. Previous assertions by the German high command that Leningrad had been encircled referred only to the cutting of land communications, they declared.

Dispatches from the front indicated that the great conflict for possession of the former capital of Russia's czars was becoming more bitter with each passing hour.

Government quarters still would not hazard a guess as to how long the former czarist capital of Leningrad would be able to stand the German pressure from the south and the Finnish pressure from the north

Orders Leningrad Taken at Any Cost

LONDON — (AP) — Adolf Hitler has sent an urgent personal order to Field Marshal Wilhelm Ritter von Leeb, commanding the German armies of the north, to take Leningrad quickly at any cost, military quarters reported today.

Hitler's order was ascribed to the approach of winter and to the increasing pressure on the German lines in the central and southern fronts which makes it imperative to obtain reinforcements there.

At the same time it was reported in well informed quarters that Josef Stalin, Russia's premier, had emphasized the gravity of Russia's position and the urgent necessity of speeding and enlarging the flow of British and American deliveries of arms and other supplies to Russia

Stalin was said to have made his statement to Sir Stafford Cripps British ambassador at Moscow and informants said that his definition of the general situation and his allusions to various military eventualities made a considerable impression in British government quarters.

of a wedge to pry Britain and the United States apart and hamper the allied war effort."

Britain, this informant said, expects such a German propaganda campaign to come to a head soon and wants to be able to meet it.

He asserted the campaign is now under way in Britain as well as in the United States that by word of mouth seeds of dissension were being sown in British "pubs" and factories.

The charge is heard here, the source said, that the United States is trying to use the lease-lend program to bar Britain from exporting anything so that the United States can steal all British foreign markets, thus throwing British labor out of jobs after the war.

On the other hand in the United States, it was said, charges are made that Britain was accepting lease-lend goods and then sending British goods to South America to steal United States trade.

"Actually," the source said, "our exports to South America have fallen off considerably, but the service departments won't let us give figures because they might give too much information to German sea raiders."

Prospects Rosy for House, Senate Accord on Tax Bill

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — With rosy prospects for a speedy agreement, a joint conference committee went to work today to adjust the differences in the house and senate versions of the huge new defense tax bill.

Although the senate bill called for $3,538,900,000 in new revenue —$367,500,000 more than provided for by the house—leaders in both chambers expressed optimism that the conferees would be able to agree on a compromise version by the end of the week.

If the conferees needed any added incentive for quick work, there was the fact that the treasury theoretically is losing an estimated $2,000,000 a day pending the effectiveness of the new excise levies provided for by the measure.

Chairman George (D-Ga) of the senate finance committee agreed with Chairman Doughton (D-N C) of the house ways and means committee that only two or three days would be needed to adjust differences between the separate chambers.

Doughton sought to help the compromise work along with a statement that he had "no particular objection" to a senate amendment reducing personal income tax exemptions from $2,000 to $1,500 for married persons and from $800 to $750 for single persons

That amendment, however, conceivably might produce considerable discussion for there was talk that some house conferees preferred to have the exemption of married persons reduced only to $1,750.

George expected the chief controversy to develop over senate changes in corporation taxes. The senate knocked out a special 10 per cent levy on companies not having sufficient income to come under the excess profits tax and then slapped on an increase in corporation surtaxes.

GESTAPO ESPIONAGE ORDER, IN HANDS OF FBI, KEPT SECRET

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—The government today won at least a temporary triumph in keeping secret nine precious pages detailing the findings of an FBI employe who was trained in espionage by the German Gestapo.

Federal Judge Mortimer W. Byers, presiding in Brooklyn at a trial of 16 men on espionage charges which named the German government as a co-conspirator, denied a defense motion for permission to examine the private notes which the witness, William G Sebold, surrendered to the FBI on his return from Germany in 1940

The court also refused to allow the notes to be introduced into evidence, which would make them a privileged, public document.

Sebold startled the court yesterday when he disclosed that he had turned over a Gestapo espionage assignment to the FBI itself which built a "secret" radio station on Long Island and operated it for the Gestapo.

FBI agents transmitted misleading reports to the Gestapo headquarters in Hamburg based on information dug up by German spies in this country, 17 of whom have pleaded guilty to the indictment upon which the others are being tried

In this manner, the FBI became go-between with a large espionage organization on the one hand and German spy headquarters on the other.

Hundreds of secret messages flowed through the underground communication system and FBI agents came in constant and "helpful" contact with German agents throughout the country.

Pupils Stay Home As Parents Say School Must Open

CINCINNATI—(AP)—Approximately 100 children went into the second day of an unscheduled "vacation" today as their parents remained firm in a demand that the board of education reopen a school ordered closed in the interest of economy.

It was Cincinnati's first school strike in several years.

The school involved is 41-year-old Horace Mann, a grade institution in residential Walnut Hills. At a mass meeting last night, members of its Parent-Teachers' association were told by several speakers that closing of classes would result in property depreciation within the area served.

Frank W Willey, chairman of a board of education committee on sites and buildings, said the whole situation would be reviewed at a special meeting early next week.

sunk and at least 65 United States citizens have met death in the sinking of American and other vessels.

The president—with the recent attacks on a U. S. destroyer and two American-owned freighters providing new material—is still working on his address, it was learned, and no authoritative information was available concerning what specific action he might announce.

Informed sources entertained little doubt that the president would make clear to Germany and the world in unmistakable language that the United States held uncompromisingly to its historic doctrine of freedom of the seas.

Some thought Mr. Roosevelt might ask congress to repeal the neutrality act Others believed that the president, as commander-in-chief, would give the navy orders to open fire on any warplanes or warships attempting to harass American trade and communications with non-belligerent countries.

Repeal of the neutrality act would greatly aid Britain since it would permit American vessels to transport American goods anywhere—inside or outside the blockade zones proclaimed by Germany—whereas at present they are barred from specific areas of hostilities now designated by presidential proclamation as combat areas.

The American-owned ships sunk are:

City of Rayville, sunk Nov. 9, 1940, after striking what was believed to have been a German mine off the coast of Australia. One American, out of a crew of 38, was lost.

Charles Pratt, 9,000 ton tanker with 5,000,000 gallons of fuel oil, sunk by a submarine Dec. 21, 1940, off Freetown, British West Africa. Two Americans, out of a crew of 42, were lost

Robin Moor, American flag ship torpedoed in the South Atlantic on May 21, 1941.

Steel Seafarer, sent to the bottom of the Red sea by a bombing plane on Sept. 7.

Sessa, former Danish vessel taken over by the U. S maritime commission and operated by an American company, sunk by a submarine 300 miles southwest of Iceland on Aug. 17. One American is missing.

Some 60 other Americans lost their lives in the sinking of foreign flag vessels.

Prior to the United States entry into the World war in April 1917, 28 American ships had been sunk or attacked by German naval forces and the death toll was 70 lives.

British Call Sinkings Challenge

LONDON—(AP)—Sinking of the American-owned steamships Sessa and Steel Seafarer and the encounter of a U-boat with the U. S. destroyer Greer were described in British newspapers today as a German challenge to the United States.

The incidents stepped up already keen British interest in President Roosevelt's broadcast Thursday night.

Cables from British newspapermen in Washington forecasting a Roosevelt announcement of sterner action by United States warships in the Atlantic were given page one play.

Berlin Still Silent On Sessa Sinking

BERLIN — (AP) — Authorized sources declared at the daily press conference today that they still were without word from the German navy concerning the sinking of the 1,700-ton United States-operated freighter Sessa and, therefore could not comment.

appointed to investigate labor controversies involving the railways. But the current strike situation is so broad and important that the chief executive decided that five men should be named. They are to be persons "not pecuniarily or otherwise interested" in any of the unions or carriers, and they will be paid $75 each a day, plus expenses.

Attached to the proclamation was a nine-page list of the carriers involved in the dispute.

In a vigorous, full-time resumption of the multiple duties of his office, President Roosevelt tried to forget the personal tragedy of the death of his mother.

Matters of both domestic and international significance once again commanded Mr. Roosevelt's attention. They had been shoved into the background from the time his mother, Sara Delano Roosevelt, died Sunday at her home beside the Hudson until she was buried late yesterday in the family plot behind St. James' Episcopal church.

Mr. Roosevelt ordered his special train made up today for a return trip to Washington, where he could come to grips once more with major problems in the field of foreign affairs.

Postponed from Monday to tomorrow night by his mother's death was a radio speech tagged in advance as of "major importance."

There was reason to believe that the chief executive would analyze the entire world situation, perhaps with special emphasis on the battle of the Aalantic.

War Influences Thinking Of '41 American Youth

CHICAGO—(INS)—War is influencing the thinking and aspirations of the 1941 youngster, it was revealed by the Reed Poll, designed to determine what the American child is thinking.

About 27 per cent of youngsters between the ages of eight and 13 questioned by the poll believed that the United States should go to war against Germany now.

Twenty per cent of the boys surveyed wanted to be airplane pilots when they grew up. Ten per cent wanted to be soldiers, and five per cent sailors. Seven per cent of the boys wanted to be firemen; and only four per cent wanted to grow up to be president.

Nineteen per cent of the girls wanted to be nurses and ten per cent listed teaching school as their ambition. Only two per cent of the girls indicated they wanted to be home-makers.

It's a fortunate thing for the average man that all his prayers are not answered.

Attacks On American Ships

WITHIN the past few days the war picture has taken on such a familiar pattern that the reality of United States participation is becoming more generally recognized.

The Greer incident, with reported attack on the U. S. destroyer by an enemy submarine in the Iceland region, was so quickly followed by announcement of sinking of an American freighter in the Red sea, that it now seems unlikely that many days can pass before growing tension will reach the breaking point as a result of some "incident" involving loss of American lives.

If the course of the United States, thus far, has been the proper one—as only a few seem inclined to doubt—the future quite clearly involves responsibility to carry on to the end, with the full strength of this nation dedicated to the task of co-operating in the defeat of the Axis powers as quickly as possible.

All semblance of neutrality was long ago cast aside by this country and the United States is as definitely considered an "enemy" by Hitler and his associates as is Great Britain and Russia.

Now, while Russia is continuing strong resistance in the east and while Great Britain's air forces are administering telling blows on Germany and occupied territory, is the logical time for the United States to give all possible material aid—in the hope that victory may be achieved while these powerful allies are available to help.

Although some may contend that the United States cannot be invaded, the plight of this nation, in the event of defeat of Great Britain and Russia, is not pleasant to contemplate.

Defense Order for Westinghouse

THE large defense order just awarded to the Mansfield plant of Westinghouse serves somewhat to allay fear that restricted production of customary peace-time commodities might result in a serious unemployment problem for this large local industry.

While it may be hoped that conditions will develop which will permit production of a fair percentage of consumer merchandise to meet civilian needs, without retarding defense work, it is gratifying to learn that action is being taken to spread defense orders in such a way as to cause the least possible hardship to industrial employes and to manufacturers who can adapt their production facilities to government work.

Mansfield has been fortunate thus far in the successful efforts of a number of factories to secure defense orders and the representatives of those industries are to be commended for the energy and persistence they have devoted to this task.

Time Out for New Deal Revival

ASIDE from being quite unusual for a president of the United States to write magazine articles during his terms in office, the opening installment of a series which President Roosevelt has prepared for Collier's, first of which is in the current issue, serves admirably to disclose Mr. Roosevelt's estimate of the infallibility of his own judgment and explains his impatience with those who disagree with his views.

It is announced that this series of articles is to appear later in book form, as an introduction to President Roosevelt's state papers and it may therefore be assumed that they can be regarded as carefully prepared statements rather than as hastily written super "columns" designed to meet a magazine deadline.

First of the articles, captioned "The Fight Goes On," is presented as "The President's Own Story of the Fight for Supreme Court Reform" and is devoted to a recital of Mr. Roosevelt's opinions of the United States Supreme Court prior to the time he was given opportunity, through deaths and resignations, to adapt the court personnel to the New Deal pattern.

"For two decades," says President Roosevelt, doubling in the capacity of magazine writer, "the Supreme Court of the United States had been successfully thwarting the common will of the overwhelming majority of the American people; and had been diverting the functions and philosophy of government into channels which ran counter to the thought and objectives of progressive opinions throughout the modern civilized world."

Restraint exercised by the Supreme Court on some of his hastily inaugurated New Deal policies, such as unanimous disapproval of the NRA, gains the comment, "For a dead hand was being laid upon this whole program of progress—to stay it all. It was the hand of the Supreme Court of the United States."

Whatever others may think of his discredited attempt to pack the Supreme Court with New Deal supporters, at the start-off of his second term, Mr. Roosevelt thinks quite well of it, placing the effort initiated by his message Feb. 5, 1937, on the Federal Judiciary, "as among the most important domestic achievements of my first two terms in office."

Many readers will regard it as unfortunate that President Roosevelt should choose this time to revive memories of his early fallacious reasoning and to recall the wild extravagances of New Deal management of public business.

There may also be the thought in the minds of some readers that the degree of intelligence, honesty, sincerity and true Americanism among those former members of the Supreme Court whom Mr. Roosevelt so bitterly assails was at least equal to that of his own appointees.

Now, however, it is the national defense program and the whole international situation that must remain in the foreground of thought, with Franklin D. Roosevelt considered in the capacity of president of the United States and commander in chief of the nation's military forces, rather than a magazine writer defending his New Deal policies.

Whatever differences of opinion may exist as to the wisdom of President Roosevelt's domestic policies there is great need for unified support of the national defense program, in which dependence must be placed on his leadership.

It appears that the youngster practicing on the typewriter was called away before completing the customary sentence, so it was left, "Now is the time for all good men to come to"—which isn't a bad idea.

WHERE SHOOTING NEEDS NO APOLOGY

Listen World!

'Ware the Jungle!

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

ONE NIGHT last week—I'd been working late and it was getting on toward 3 a. m.—a Thing came out of the woods and called.

No ordinary night sound . . . cluck or whisper or hoot. A yowl instead . . . starling deep-throated, indrawn, gulping. Rising, abruptly to a storm of snarls . . . then fading to a slobber of wild wails. An insane woman's sobs. Only one beast on earth gives cry like that—mountain lion. Sierra Cougar. And if there's a fouler sound this side of hell, I've yet to hear it.

Couldn't have taken more than two minutes in all. Yet that one howl literally blew the lid off our particular section of civilization. A second before, the night had been serene. No moon . . . no sharp-etched shape or sound. Only an endless vault of lapis loveliness . . . star-studded . . . pungent with the high Sierra's gypsy scent . . . sweet fern and mint, bay leaves, tar weed and "mountain misery." Now that one cry had shattered all the beauty and the peace. And brought the jungle back.

You could feel it, that jungle fear, creeping like a tangible tide into every last chink and cranny of the wilderness. Before it, in a desperate pattering, you could hear the smaller creatures of the forest fleeing for their very lives. You could feel your own fear, too . . . and it startled you. It had been so long since Fear ran amuck on these acres. Years since a mountain lion had denned up in the high crags. But now, with one howl, the Terror was back again . . . stripping us all of our civilized pride and power . . . turning us all into crouching, shuddering beings.

Just as across the sea, Hitler is stripping men of their hard-won dreams and dignity, their ideals of honor and courage, friendliness and faith, so I thought. How close they are, these two, in character and origin. Murderous madman and mountain monster! Spawn of the jungle, both of them; bred in the dark and secret places . . . prowling, peering and pouncing, long after we thought we'd rid the world of their breed.

But we'd never been rid of them. We had never conquered the jungle of which they were a part. They had always been out there, waiting for their chance, and we moderns who prided ourselves on our progress, our civilized decency . . . we had given them their chance through our own laxity.

Only that morning I'd ridden our boundary line, rounding up some stray calves . . . noting brush tangles that needed a clearing . . . kidding myself that I knew each foot of the way. Mountain lions? That was a joke. This was civilized soil. And I thought, contentedly, of the stout fences, the paved roads, the good schools and friendly homes with their convenient gadgets that had replaced the tumble-down shacks and stealthy trails I once had known. Books, music, flowers, friends—they'd tamed the wilderness. So I'd thought!

Yet, in spite of these things, a cougar had come slinking out of some secret den and flung the horror of his challenge against our walls. And, in spite of these things, a Hitler had come snarling, out of the dark places of the human heart and spewed his hatred against everything men held decent and dear!

But how? The answer was hideously plain. They'd come because we'd left the way unguarded! In all of us . . . in the finest, the bravest of us, there are places like that. Secret places within the spirit where hate and horror breed, nourished by our laxity, our stupidity, indifference and dreadful conceit.

HAD THE JUNGLE COME BACK? NO — THE JUNGLE HAD ALWAYS BEEN THERE AND ALWAYS WOULD BE! THERE WAS NO SAFETY IN ANY MAN'S LIFE — OR HIS NEIGHBOR'S — UNTIL EACH MAN LEARNED TO RIDE HERD ON THE DARK AND SECRET PLACES IN HIS OWN HEART.

Timely Editorial

No Railroad Strike.

Although mediation of the railroad wage dispute is a failure to date and although the employes have voted by big majorities for a strike, it is a reasonable assumption that a strike can be prevented. That is because the mediation so far as it has proceeded, and the strike vote as it has been taken, are in reality preliminaries in a process of adjustment from which there may be a fair hope of success.

The attempt at mediation now ended was directed by the railroad labor board, provided for in the railway act. The next stage, which may be decisive, is appointment by the president of a special fact-finding board. This board will weigh the demands of one group of employes for wage advances of 30 per cent and those of another for increases of 30 to 34 cents an hour. It will examine as well the finances of the railroads and then make recommendations as to what it believes would be a just settlement. For a period of thirty days after the board reports there can be no strike or other action by either side to the dispute.—Kansas City Star.

Sweet Sorrow

—By HELEN LOOMIS LINHAM

Never love a single thing too well;
For if you let it storm your heart I know
There shall be sorrow more than tongue can tell
At parting, oh, it always has been so.

A single rose upon a bush in spring
Can turn the heartbeats into melody;
The sudden song a meadowlark may sing
Carves beauty on the very soul of me.

But roses die, and birds hush every note
In autumn, and there are but memories
Of velvet petals, and the crimson throat
Of robins, while the heart takes toll and grieves.

Oh, heed a little warning ere you start
To loving over much—'twill break your heart!

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Hoarders of Defense Materials Due for Drastic Cuts In Grants

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Former King Carol and his companion, Madame Lupescu, currently domiciled in Mexico City, will not visit Washington. They would love to more than anything else. But it's out.

Authority for this interesting item of social news is Mrs. Evie Robert, beauteous blond wife of the former secretary of the Democratic national committee. Evie has good grounds for her information. She got it straight from Carol himself.

This is the way it happened: Evie and her husband, "Chip," were dinner guests of Carol and his famed friend. Evie, seated next to the former Rumanian monarch, asked him why he didn't come to Washington.

"The one place I want to go more than anywhere on this hemisphere," he replied with a sigh, "is the capital of your great country. I have heard so much about it, but, alas, I cannot do it. It is impossible."

"But why? We are a hospitable people."

"It is this way. Through certain sources an inquiry was made of Mrs. Roosevelt concerning Madame Lupescu. It was asked whether Madame would be received at the White House. The answer from Mrs. Roosevelt was no. Under those circumstances I cannot go to Washington. Much as I want to see your great capital city, I would not go without Madame Lupescu."

Hoarded Materials.

THE new seven-man Supply, Priorities and Allocation board headed by Vice President Wallace, was not just making talk when it warned that "materials hoarded in the cellars and attics of certain industries will be routed out." There is plenty of fire behind this smoke.

It is not generally known, but the new board is armed to the teeth with authority both to ferret out and to commandeer these hidden stores.

Buried unnoticed in the expanded draft-industry law passed by congress last May, is this significant language: "The president shall be entitled to obtain such information from, require such reports by, and make such inspection of premises of, any person, firm or corporation as may be necessary or appropriate, in his discretion, to the enforcement or administration of the provisions of this section."

Coupled with the greatly enlarged powers to seize property, this clause gives the president sweeping control over all raw materials in private possession. This authority he delegated in toto to Wallace's new board.

Known only to defense insiders, also, is the fact that a nationwide checkup on hoarded material already is underway.

Inventory questionnaires went out to 65,000 firms, requiring them to make sworn statements on their holdings of 16 basic metals. The census bureau is handling the job of tabulating these reports; and from the information so far collected it is apparent that there is plenty of hoarding.

Wallace's board has three courses open to it in cracking down on speculators and hoarders:

(1) It can seize the excess stockpiles at a government-fixed price; (2) it can deprice the companies of raw materials until they have exhausted their hoardings; (3) it can require them to use their reserves wholly for defense and essential civilian goods.

Note: For military reasons, results of the Wallace board survey are closely guarded, but certain industries are due for drastic cuts in their priority grants. Their returns show that they were allowed to obtain quantities of materials far beyond the amount of defense they are now producing.

THE state department is planning to hire Lawrence Cramer, whom Ickes fired as governor of the Virgin Islands, to head its new bureau in charge of the Caribbean Islands. Yet the state department wants this new bureau to cooperate with Ickes regarding U. S. island in the Caribbean. . . . Dave Niles has been requested to soften Ickes for the Cramer appointment. . . . Just before the Nazi submarine attack on the U. S. destroyer Greer, three U. S. tankers had proceeded to Iceland where they transhipped oil to British tankers, which then proceeded to England. . . . This cut the usual ocean haul for the British by about one-third. And of course the U. S. tankers had U. S. protection as far as Iceland. . . . Despite the howls of General Maxwell, Budget Director Harold Smith has shaved the budget of Maxwell's export control office from $3,000,000 to $1,000,000. Squirrel Diplomacy.

TALL, curly haired Australian Minister Richard G. Casey became involved in a rather delicate situation during a recent trip to Oklahoma—but, diplomat that he is, he wiggled out.

The situation had to do with squirrel meat.

Casey went to Oklahoma to address the state American Legion convention at Muskogee, and while there was invited to a squirrel and spare-rib barbecue at a nearby country club. All went well until a platter of the main course was placed before him. Suddenly the Australian minister lost his appetite.

"What's the trouble, Mr. Minister?" inquired Representative Jack Nichols. "Aren't you hungry?"

"Oh, Yes," replied Casey, nibbling at a spare-rib. "But you see this squirrel meat is new to me. We don't have any squirrels in Australia."

"Go ahead and try some," someone urged. "You'll like it. Squirrel is a great delicacy in this country."

But Casey still hesitated. Then, flashing his handsomest smile, he explained.

"You see, my little girl, who is 12 and my boy, who is 9, hadn't seen any squirrels until they came to this country, and they became quite attached to them in Washington parks. In fact, my boy is so fond of squirrels that he put me on my honor not to eat any squirrels when I left for Oklahoma."

That's neat diplomacy for you!

America First Funds.

THE America First Committee has steadfastly refused to divulge any information about its source of funds or size of contributions. But as a result of the recent special congressional election in the First Wisconsin district, the Wisconsin branch of the America Committee may be forced to open its books.

State Attorney General John E. Martin has announced his intention to order the chapter to file an official report on its expenditures in the contest.

The America First organization took a very active part in the campaign in behalf of Lawrence H. Smith, successful Republican condidate who ran on an isolationist platform, and Wisconsin law requires all organizations participating in political campaigns to file detailed expense accounts. Martin now holds this over the America First Committee. Whether it will submit a report remains to be seen. So far the committee has been very secretive about its finances.

A Farmer's Diary

Maybe Jim's Right

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

"NOW don't ask me what I think about the war!" exclaimed the energetic, wispy farmer's wife, proffering me a chair. "I don't ever read the papers. The radio's bad enough, but Junior tunes in and I can't help hearin' some of it.

"I work here all day and half the night puttin' up canned fruit and ironin' and mendin' and patchin' for the kids. School lunches have to be packed, and I try to scrub the woodhouse once a week, after I wash. Today I've got all the bedding on the line.

"Tomorrow I'll have 10 chickens to dress for the Saturday trade. There's tomatoes to pick and pickles to put down in brine, and corn to dry . . . and I've tried for a week to get at sortin' up the rags for when the rag man comes, but I can't get to it.

"The Circle I'm in had a social last night and I baked a cake. It was angel food—real nice, if I say it myself. The preacher thought it come right from the bakery shop until after he'd eaten two pieces. Every woman there wanted the recipe.

"The cabbage is burstin' from all this rain, and my kraut isn't cut. I told Junior to stop after school and borrow Brown's kraut cutter. They get our peeler every applebutter time.

"Yes, that quilt was my grandmother's. She made it at 80. Dear me, but a lot of fine stitches she put in it, too. About all the sewing I do, any more, is patch. It's hard to believe how many patches it takes for two boys, till they get their growth. I used to think when they were small, that by now I'd have lots of time to do everything in.

"But here, the hired man's gone off to war and we're milkin' 20 cows and bottlin' the milk, so I have to help. Electric milkers are a good thing, see, but it takes me an hour to get everything shipshape in the milk room, after the chores are done, and the milk aerated. That aerator has to be spotless. Those inspectors may happen in just any time!

"Then the other night when the power went off in the storm we had to milk by hand. Was that a job! I was clear wore out.

"No, I don't take exercises to keep myself slim . . . Yes, I use lots of soap. By the time night comes, I'm nearly always ready to sleep without rockin'. But some of the neighbors may call up and we'll talk on the phone for a while. That rests a body. By then it's too late to read the paper.

"No—don't ask me how to run the world! I wouldn't know. I always say if everybody was as busy as me, there wouldn't be any wars, for they wouldn't get time to fight 'em.

"But Jim—that's my husband—he grins, and says he doubts that! He says what they need is a few like me in the army!"

ENGINEERS TO MEET IN CITY

Municipal Officials From Ohio Cities To Attend Sewage Conference.

Approximately 200 engineers, operators and municipal officials, particularly interested in the field of sewage treatment, will meet in Mansfield Sept. 18 and 19 for the 15th annual Ohio Conference on sewage treatment.

The conference will open on Thursday, Sept. 18, at 10:30 a. m. at the Mansfield-Leland hotel where all sessions will be held.

J. R. Turner, superintendent of the Mansfield sewage treatment plant, is directing arrangements for the conference and will guide the visitors in an inspection of Mansfield's plant.

Papers will be read on the various phases of sewage treatment. A forum session for the interchanging ideas and general information will also be held.

In 1927 when the group was organized there were only 91 Ohio cities served by 79 treatment plants. In 1940 there were 209 cities served by 182 plants. At present 193 plants handle sewage for 65 per cent of the population connected to sewers.

DAMAGE SUIT ASKS $21,935

Richland Resident Sues After Suffering Injuries In Mishap.

Claiming permanent injuries as the result of an accident last February when he was pinned against an Ohio Power company truck by an automobile operated by Max R. Sayre, Mansfield R. D. 4, Wade H. Hunter, Perrysville R. D. 2, had filed suit in the Richland county common pleas court today asking $21,935 damages.

Three defendants, the Ohio Power company, Sayre and Kenneth F. Beabout of Roseland were named by Hunter and the suit charges they were negligent in connection with the accident that took place Feb. 7, at the intersection of North Diamond and East Third streets.

Hunter, in his petition, claims that he was walking south on the east sidewalk of North Diamond street just prior to the accident and that as he stepped off the curb to cross Third street, an automobile operated by Beabout, headed north on Diamond street, and another car driven by Max R. Sayre, headed east on Third street, collided.

As the result of the collision, Hunter alleges that he was struck by Sayre and pinned against an Ohio Power company truck backed up to the south door of the Ohio Power company warehouse on the northeast corner of the intersection.

He claims that he received "compound fractures of the left tibia and fibula, comminuted fractures of the right tibia and fibula with communication of the fracture lines with the knee joint cavity and severe nervous shock."

These injuries, he claims in his petition, required medical attention for 14 weeks, and were instrumental in incurring hospital expenses amounting to $500, and medical expenses estimated at $435.

CITY HALL EMPLOYES FINALLY DECIDE ON DATE FOR PICNIC

Members of a committee making arrangements for the annual picnic and outing of Municipal building employes finally got their heads together yesterday afternoon and selected Wednesday, Sept. 17, as the date for the event.

Formerly the committee was muddled by the many different events scheduled for the week. The shadow of playday on the following day, the state sewage conference here on Wednesday and Thursday and the Moose convention starting Thursday, all served to confuse the committee.

Ralph Hughes, municipal court clerk, general chairman, announced that the employes would hold their picnic at North Lake park as in previous years.

Highlight of the outing will be a baseball game between council members and the personnel of the police and fire departments at 2 p. m. Picnic luncheon will be served at 6 p. m.

Serving on the committee with Hughes, are: Marjorie L. Palmer, refreshments; Lee Remy, purchases; Faye Chamberlain, women's activities; Charles Anglin, secretary-treasurer; and Glen Adams, athletics.

Serving on a special committee will be Mayor William J. Locke, Police Chief Meade K. Bates, Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch and Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton. They, other committeemen said, will be in charge of the weather.

COULD BE

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla.—(U P.)—The Oklahoma house of representatives was nearing adjournment and the members were in a flowery mood. They complimented each other, gave presents to legislative leaders and described the cooperation of the press.

All this prompted Rep. Holly Anderson of Tulsa to rise and observe:

"I hope the voters think as much of us as we think of ourselves."

Britain Will Get American Eggs In Powder Form

CHICAGO—(INS)—Under the Lend-Lease Act Britain will receive almost a third of a billion eggs, but in a form that the hen would never recognize as her own product.

To facilitate shipping the eggs will be changed to powder form by Chicago firms.

Each of the 26,000,000 dozens of eggs will be candled separately and then broken. The whites will be separated from the yolks, and the parts will be separately sprayed into a funnel blower whose hot blasts will eliminate the moisture and produce both yolks and whites in powder form.

The whites and yolks are then mixed in scientific proportions and the egg in dehydrated from results. The United States Army has been a recent buyer of this concentrated food.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

MARY'S TONE was so discouraged that I hastened to reassure her, even though I realized as much as she did the immensity of the problem which confronted us.

"It's bad enough," I said, "but it isn't the impossible thing it was. We know several things now which we did not know before."

I picked up the paper upon which she had written down the code translations, ready to recapitulate them for her encouragement. But my father's peremptory knock upon the masked door interrupted me.

Quickly, and with distinct nervousness, I gathered up Marion's letter, the code book and the pages of flimsy paper upon which I had been working, and went toward the door. I felt sure I would need them almost immediately, and my father's first words confirmed my intuition.

"Did you find out anything? Have you finished?" he asked.

"Yes, to both questions," I answered.

Does she say where she is?"

Aided By Nancy Carew.

"No, this was written before she left the college."

"Ah, yes, so it was," he rejoined. "And it can wait a minute. I want both of you in here now. Miss Carew is just going."

He ushered us into the living room of the balcony suite where we found Nancy Carew, plainly excited and a bit fluttery, standing in the center of the room.

"Miss Carew has been of inestimable aid to me," my father said, "and as she is very tired, she has waited only to say good night to you."

"Rather, good morning," the old actress said, with a nervous laugh. "I am so glad to have been of service. Please let me know if you need me again."

"We shall call upon you, never fear," my father said. Then, with impressive courtesy, he escorted her through the outer door and closed it after her. Turning then, he faced us with something in his manner which made us both suddenly intent and alert.

"Miss Carew has just put in my hands some very important threads," he said. "Indeed, they were far more important than she realized.

"But I have them all safe now," he went on, "and before I go down to see that gangster Gus has in custody at the hideaway, I want to know what threads you can give me, Mary. Your aunt has told me you also have discovered things about Stephen Redfield?"

"She gave her documents to me," I told him quickly. "I'll get them."

Madge Leaves For a Rest.

I went to my bag and took from it a bundle of papers including the two apparently blank sheets which Mary had retrieved when the breeze blew Stephen Redfield's secret papers about at the restaurant, and handed them to her. Then I went to the door of the bedroom, mindful of my father's unspoken wish, and spoke with a purposely apologetic air.

"If you do not need me, and I am sure you don't, for I know nothing of this save what Mary has told me, I'll lie down for a bit until you're ready for me."

"A most excellent idea," my father said. "I imagine this will be rather a long session."

He smiled at Mary and me impartially, and, as I opened the door, uttered a postscript.

"When I do summon you, I shall want to hear all about that code book and Marion's letter," he said.

"Everything is ready for you," I told him, then added as if an afterthought, "I shall need my overnight bag, Mary—"

But she was already on her feet and was handing the bag to me. I caught a knowing, intent look in her eyes, and knew that she had a shrewd guess as to my reason for wanting the bag.

I justified the guess, the moment I had closed the bedroom door behind me, and softly slipped the catch which would prevent its being opened by anyone save myself. I knew that I could plausibly explain ignorance of the latch when I should be called upon to open it again.

Then I removed my writing portfolio from my bag, and with shaking fingers took from it the sheet of flimsy paper with the queer characters on it, which Mary had retrieved, with the two apparently blank sheets, in the breeze which had scattered Stephen Redfield's secret papers.

"So long ago!" I murmured with stiff lips as I unfolded it.

Mothers Are On Beauty March Now

By MME. QUI VIVE

In the yore times when movies weren't what they are now mothers were represented as dear old dodos who wore shawls, had gray hair parted in the middle and wadded up into a doorknob at the back. That was a good one. You'll have to hunt long and go far to find a woman of any age who gets herself up like that. Our dancing grandmothers are one of the cheerful signs of the times.

The gap that existed between the older and younger generations is gradually being bridged. Mothers and daughters go skipping together to the beauty shop to get grand hairdos and new designs in makeup. They wear each others clothes, when necessity arrives. Hats don't care whether they are worn by a girl of 16 or a lady of 60. Ain't it fun?

One reason for this is that there's no shelving time for women, as happened when feminine activities were limited to looking after the home, a few professions and trades. No Geraldine, as long as a woman can chug along under her own steam as long as her legs are strong and steady enough to carry her, she will step right along in the modern parade. The old chair by the fire place is not for her.

No home is a happy one wherein resides an aged, idle grumbler. Or a weary old lady who whines forever about the past, how much better it was than the present. But if there is present a grand old girl who plays with the dog and the kids, who is ever willing to lend a helping hand, whose kindly, gay presence dispels the clouds of disappointments and family troubles, then the home has a balance wheel. She has lived long enough to realize that a little fun and laughter inspire the children to stick around with the family instead of always beating it on in pursuit of their own affairs.

Since grandmother's young days, styles in mothers have changed. The old timer was often so saintlike that she was a terrible bore. She "lived for her children," gave the white meat of the chicken to Pa, ate the neck herself. Which, of course, caused Pa to rule the roost with a rod of iron.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

If you are going to use such a device as the Blackwood convention, it is well for you and your partner to be certain of when the 4-No Trump call is a Blackwood slam signal and when it is not. Of course, if the bidding between you goes 1-Spade, 2-Hearts, 3-Diamonds, 4-Clubs, a call of 4-No Trumps is nothing but an effort to play at that contract. But vary the sequence a bit, with no definite suit fit shown or guaranteed by an early jump, and you have good grounds for costly misunderstanding.

	♠ A Q J 6 2 ♥ 7 ♦ A Q ♣ A 10 7 5 2
♠ 10 9 ♥ A 5 2 ♦ 7 6 2 ♣ K Q 6 4 3	N. W. E. S.	♠ 7 5 3 ♥ 9 6 4 ♦ 10 8 5 3 ♣ J 9 8
	♠ K 8 4 ♥ K Q J 10 8 3 ♦ K J 9 4 ♣ None

(Dealer: North. Both sides vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♥	Pass
3 ♣	Pass	4 NT	Pass
5 NT	Pass	7 NT	Dbl

And West laid down his heart A to climax a tragedy of bidding misunderstanding by two of the foremost players in the Masters' Pairs for the world's championship played recently at Asbury Park, N. J.

"Why did you tell me you had all four aces?" asked South when the deal was over.

"I didn't tell you any such thing," responded North. "Your 4-No Trumps could not possibly have been a Blackwood ace-asker when we had not previously shown any suit fit or indicated one by some kind of a jump. I viewed it as a natural bid. It sounded to me as if you considered your hand just a bit too strong to say merely 3-No Trumps over my 3-Clubs, and wanted to give me a mild slam invitation, which I accepted mildly by not going straight to slam, but merely 5-No Trumps to say I was slightly stronger than my bidding had shown."

You can discuss all you want whether South should have bid 4-Diamonds on his second turn, or something else, to help make a misunderstanding impossible. But the real lesson of this deal is that partners should have some agreement on "when a Blackwood is not a Blackwood" and vice versa.

Tomorrow's Problem.

	♠ A K J 2 ♥ K 7 4 ♦ A 9 8 ♣ Q J 5
♠ Q 4 ♥ Q 10 9 5 3 ♦ Q 5 4 ♣ 9 8 7	N. W. E. S.	♠ 10 7 ♥ A 8 2 ♦ 7 3 2 ♣ K 10 6 3 2
	♠ 9 8 6 5 3 ♥ J 6 ♦ K J 10 6 ♣ A 4

(Dealer: East. East-West vulnerable.)

If North bids 1-No Trump on this deal, South 2-Spades, North 3-Spades and South 4-Spades, what is the correct defense by East and West?

Shoulder of Lamb a Fine Rolled Roast

By BETSY NEWMAN

Rolled lamb shoulder is an economical cut of meat and makes an excellent roast. Most people like cold sliced lamb, too, and minced lamb served on toast helps to take care of any leftovers.

Today's Menu.

Rolled Lamb Shoulder
Currant Barbecued Sauce
Baked Potatoes
Spring Salad with Bacon Dressing
Buttered Carrots and Peas
Cherry Kuchen Coffee

Rolled Lamb Shoulder.

Lamb shoulder roast
Salt, pepper
2 tablespoons vinegar
2 tablespoons butter
½ cup currant jelly
½ teaspoon dry mustard

Have lamb boned and rolled at the market; put on rack in open roasting pan, sprinkle with salt and pepper. Make an incision and insert meat thermometer so that center of bulb reaches center of roast. Put in slow oven (300 degrees F.) and roast until done, when thermometer registers 180 degrees F. Allow 40 to 45 minutes per pound for roasting. During the last hour of cooking, baste meat frequently with sauce made by melting butter and heating it with currant jelly, vinegar and mustard. Serve additional sauce with roast.

Bacon Dressing for Salad.

8 strips bacon
4 tablespoons catsup
6 tablespoons vinegar
6—tablespoons salad oil
¼ teaspoon salt
White pepper
1 tablespoon onion.

Cut bacon fine and let fry slowly until crisp with finely chopped onion. Remove from fire, stir in rest of ingredients, continuing to stir until well blended. Cool and serve on coarsely chopped lettuce, endive and watercress.

Cherry Kuchen.

1 cup milk
½ cup wheat cereal
3 egg yolks
½ cup sugar
1 cup sour cream
1 teaspoon vanilla
¼ teaspoon salt
3 egg whites
1 can sour cherries, drained, or equivalent in fresh sweet cherries, stoned

Heat milk, add wheat cereal gradually, and cook until thickened and smooth. Blend in sugar, sour cream, vanilla and salt. Stir in beaten egg yolks, fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Line 2 small or 1 large pan with rich pastry, pour mixture into crust, and arrange cherries on top. Sprinkle with sugar and cinnamon and bake in slow oven, 325 degrees F., until crust is brown and filling is firm.

Love Will Come Again + + +

By Alma Sioux Scarberry

(Copyright, 1941)

CHAPTER XXVII

"Why don't you take a little rest?" she suggested to Miss Sayres. "Or go for a walk? I'd like to talk a little while with your patient, if I may."

"I'd love a little air," the nurse got up from her chair. "And I want to talk with the maid about Mrs. Hillyer's diet."

When Miss Sayers had gone out and closed the door, Gay bent over April kissing her cheek.

"Oh, darling!" she choked. "You don't know what it means to me to see you out of the hospital."

"You can't know what it means to me," April sighed. "Imagine being home again."

Gay sat down. "Curt wanted so much to have you taken directly to Pennyhaven," she said. "He's worried about whether you'll have everything you need here. Why don't you marry him now, April? He's heart broken because you won't."

April shook her head firmly. "No, Gay, I can't do that! I'll never marry until I can walk. Do you think I would be such a burden to Curt? It wouldn't be fair to him. Oh, don't you understand?"

Gay turned her face away. "Oh, but I think you're wrong, dear. All he asks is the right to take care of you."

"He's an angel," April's eyes filled. "But I can't, Gay. You wouldn't! I know you wouldn't!"

Gay's chin trembled: "I wouldn't if it were anybody but Curt," she said, stifled. "He's so different from any other man, darling. He has such a great heart."

"That's just it," April stirred restlessly. "I don't want any man to marry me because he pities me. I couldn't bear it. Please make him understand."

Gay got up and walked to the window, looking out on the bare trees that would soon burst forth with leaves and blossoms.

"I—I'll try to make Curt understand," she said very low, her own heart breaking.

Hill put in an appearance after dinner. Kenny was getting his bath and Miss Sayers left the room, leaving April and Hill alone.

"How nice to see you," April smiled a welcome. "Sit down here beside the bed and tell me all about things. How's the golf school coming along?"

"Couldn't be better," Hill assured her cheerfully. "We've signed fifty members for the club, and thirty-seven of them want golf lessons."

"Marvelous!" April clapped her hands. "Oh, I'm so glad, Hill!"

"Not half as glad as I am," he smiled. "Say it's grand to see you looking so chipper. How are you feeling?"

"Fine." April smiled. "Just a little tired of being in bed. I'm half tempted to take this darn cast off and go for a walk. If they don't take it off pretty soon, I'll be grown to it."

Hill caught his breath painfully. "You must be patient," he reminded her. "If you get too reckless we'll have to tie you down. By the way, I'm a neighbor of yours."

"What do you mean?"

"I live across the street," Hill told her. "I took a room there a few weeks ago, so I could be nearer Kenny."

"Oh, that was nice," April traced a pattern on the coverlet of her bed. "It was very thoughtful of you. I'll feel a lot better knowing you're near enough to keep an eye on him while I'm tied down."

Hill smiled crookedly: "Will you? I can keep him in the air out at the club as soon as school is out. That is if you think's it's all right."

"Of course it's all right," April said with a catch in her voice. "Nothing would make me happier Hill than for you to share Kenny with me. That's the way I always wanted it. You know that."

Hill smiled whitely: "Swell. Well, then, that's settled. It'll be almost like a camp for him out there this summer. He can run wild with his golf clubs."

"He'll love it," April laughed. "I guess he's a chip off the old block. Golf is in his blood."

"Well, that's all right if I can teach him how to make a business of it," Hill said seriously. "But I wouldn't want him to waste his time playing at it for years like his old man did."

April smiled gently: "Well, his old man will make up for it. That's the thing that matters. You've plenty of years ahead of you to build up a fortune. It isn't as though you'd discovered your mistake after you were old and gray."

Hill looked away: "No, that's a mistake I can correct, fortunately. But there are some others that aren't so easy."

April sighed heavily: "We all make mistakes, Hill. I'd like to take back a few of mine. But there isn't much use crying over water that has gone over the dam. What's meant to be will be."

"Do you really think that's true?" Hill mused thoughtfully.

April nodded: "I think I'm becoming quite a fatalist. It's the only way to keep from going crazy when life comes along and gives you a few blows in the solar plexis."

A few days after April's return from the hospital she lay propped up in her own bed thinking over the long weeks she had lain helpless since her accident, and how in a few seconds the entire course of her life had been changed.

Not only of her life, but Gay's and Cherry's and Curt's. Gay was at Pennyhaven because fire had completely wiped out the school in which every dollar she had in the world was invested. Cherry had given up the job she had wanted so much so that she could stay at home and take care of Kenny. And poor Curt. It seemed he might have suffered more than anyone else because of her accident that night on Queensborough bridge.

Then April remembered that Hill's life had been completely changed too, and the burden on her heart lifted a little. Only Hill seemed to have gained something from her tragedy. He had realized it was time for him to settle down to serious work, and he was devoting long hard hours to the golf school and the building of a secure future for himself.

April had not yet learned that he was doing it for her, because Hill had been giving money for the household to Cherry, swearing her to secrecy. April must not know.

Cherry however was still unbending in her attitude toward her brother-in-law. She took the money without thanking him, her attitude being that it was about time he started paying for things, and not to expect her to think him noble because he was doing his duty at last.

Several times since her return home April's thoughts had turned to money. She had no idea whatsoever what her hospital bills had been, or she would have been alarmed.

Miss Sayers had left after two weeks at the apartment, and Hyacinthe had taken over caring for her. The old colored woman was excellent in caring for the sick, and April thoroughly enjoyed the way Hyacinthe spoiled her. Then too, there was the matter of economy. A trained nurse was a big expense.

On this particular spring day April's thoughts turned again to expenses and the idea occurred to her that both Cherry and Gay had been evasive when she tried to find out how much her illness was costing.

Once Gay had told her the hospital had said she wasn't to think about her bills until she was back on the air again. After all she was a highly paid radio star, and they certainly weren't worried about her credit standing. April had been ill enough to believe Gay at that time, but as she began to think more clearly she realized Gay had perhaps not been telling the truth.

Suddenly a thought flashed through April's mind. Could it be possible that Curt had paid the bills? And where was all the money coming from to run the house? It wasn't possible the money they had in the bank at the time of her accident could still be holding out. Because they had been in business together, Gay and April had a joint account. Gay paid all the bills because she was an excellent executive. She had taken care of the salaries and expenses of the music school, as well as the house.

April realized suddenly that it couldn't be possible that Gay could have managed without help. Since the school had burned down, there was no income at all except her salary as Penny's companion. Cherry was not working, so she couldn't have helped with the household expenses.

April was sure Curt had been taking care of them all. Her eyes filled with exasperated tears. What a fool she had been not to realize it before! That is just what Curt would do, because he loved her. He would feel he had to relieve her of all worry.

And now what was she to do? She wouldn't marry Curt until she could walk again. And how long would it be before she would be able to go back to her career, so that she could pay him back?

They had all accepted too much from Curt as it was. He had been their angel in every possible way. But to allow him to pay hospital bills and living expenses, that was something her ingrained Southern pride could not bear. Even if she did plan to marry Curt when she was well, that was accepting charity.

When Curt came to see April that evening, he noted with anxiety that her cheeks were flushed and hot when he bent to kiss her. She seemed highly nervous. He sat down beside her bed, taking her hand.

"Have you had many visitors today, darling?" he smiled his charming, warm smile. "You look as though you might have had a little excitement. Your cheeks are pinker than usual. Maybe it's just that you're getting well so fast."

April turned and raised on her pillows so she could see his face.

"No, it isn't visitors, dear. I've just been doing a lot of thinking."

"That's bad," he smiled. "Don't think. Just relax and let the world go by. Now what have you been thinking, sweet? About us?"

April stirred restlessly. "I've been thinking about how foolish I've been not to have seen through a lot of things. Why I haven't even had sense enough to realize where the money has been coming from to pay all the bills. Oh, Curt!"

Curt stiffened, and his grip tightened on her little warm, thin hand. He smiled uncertainly:

"Just where do you think the money has been coming from, my dear?"

"From you, of course. Where else would it come from?"

Curt shook his head, bending to kiss her brow. "So that's what you're all flushed and strung up about. Well, my darling, I'd like to take the credit very much. But I'm afraid I can't. I haven't paid a penny of your bills, much to my regret. Although I can't see why you'd let it upset you, even if I had."

April said relieved, "Oh, then Gay told the truth. The hospital is going to let me pay the bills when I get back on the air."

Curt felt he was duty bound to tell April the truth. It was the only way to relieve her mind. She'd have to know soon, so it might as well be then.

He said with difficulty, trying to smile, "All your bills are paid, my dear. So you don't have to worry about getting up and going forth to toil."

"That can't be possible," April was bewildered. "Why who could have paid them if you didn't? Gay didn't have the money."

"Hillyer paid them," Curt said.

April gasped: "Hill! Oh, no!"

Curt nodded. "He assumed full responsibility for all of your expenses. It's no more than fair that you should know the truth. Hillyer deserves all the credit."

April sank back among her pillows, completely taken aback with amazement.

* * *

"He didn't want you to know," Curt went on. "Gay was sworn to secrecy. But I hadn't promised not to tell you, so I feel I'm doing the right thing in relieving your mind. Or does it relieve your mind, dear? You don't object to his philanthropy, do you?"

April had grown very pale. "Hill!" The hand Curt held trembled. "I can't believe it!"

"I must confess," Curt explained, "I did go to Dr. Malcolm and tell him I would assume the financial responsibility. I told him we were going to be married. But the next day the matter was taken entirely out of my hands.

"Hillyer came to the hospital and threatened mayhem if I didn't get out and let him take things over. That same day he deposited fifteen thousand dollars with Dr. Malcolm to make sure you had everything possible to help you recover."

"Fifteen thousand dollars!" April gasped. "Where did Hill get fifteen thousand dollars?"

"You're not supposed to be told this," Curt said, "but Hillyer sold his family home in Virginia to a lawyer who gave him the cash at once. That is where he got the money."

"Sold Hillcrest!" April cried. "Why, I can't believe it. It's the only possession he had in the world that meant anything to him. He had always sworn Hillcrest must remain in the family to be handed down to Kenny, no matter what happened. It was a religion with him that no gentleman would sell his ancestral home to raise money."

Curt smiled crookedly: "Well you know the truth. You know now what it meant to him to see you live, and be well again."

THEATERS

Hospital Drama.

"Dr. Kildare's Wedding Day," opening today at the Ohio, strikes a tragic note, but is not without its comedy since the cast includes Red Skelton, comedian and former Mansfielder. The regular "Dr. Kildare" cast appears in the picture with Lionel Barrymore portraying the crusty "Dr. Gillespie," who keeps Lew Ayres as "Dr. Kildare," from breaking away from his profession after his fiance is killed in an accident. Nils Aster returns to the screen after a seven-year absence to play the part of a symphony conductor, and the cast includes Laraine Day and Alma Kruger.

Hollywood Burlesque.

The Great Profile burlesques Hollywood's movie moguls in the rollicking comedy, "World Premier," showing at the Madison. John Barrymore plays the film tycoon who decides to get exploitation for his new picture, an expose of foreign agents, even if he has to resort to dangerous lengths to do it. He is aided in his adventure by Ricardo Cortez and Frances Farmer, stars of his picture and a trio of comedians including Louis Alberni, Sig Rumann and Fritz Feld. Foreign agents attempt to steal vital parts of U. S. airplane apparatus in "Flying Blind," the second attraction with Richard Arlen and Jean Parker.

Light Comedy.

The light-hearted comedy of a newspaperman who stops his philandering in Portugal when he learns his wife is about to divorce him in New York, "Affectionately Yours," showing at the Ritz, features Merle Oberon, Dennis Morgan and Rita Hayworth. Merle Oberon plays the wife, and Rita Hayworth portrays Morgan's associate correspondent, who gives chase once Morgan starts for America. Ralph Bellamy is in the cast. * * *

Desert Thriller.

A stirring story of heroism against a desert background is set forth in "Four Feathers," Technicolor film directed by Alexander Korda, opening Thursday at the Park. Dealing with a young English officer who resigns his commission because he knows he is a coward and then, to retrieve his honor, sets out for Egypt, where Kitchener is embarking on the Sudan campaign, the picture depicts the dare-devilry which helped the army win the battle of Omdurman. John Clements, a new discovery, June Duprez, and C. Aubrey Smith are in the cast. "Bowery Blitzkreig," with the East Side Kids is the second feature.

Bombing Raid.

A fierce bombing raid that strikes terror in the hearts of the crew of a tramp steamer plowing through the war zone features, "The Long Voyage Home," showing at the Majestic. Thomas Mitchell, John Wayne and Ian Hunter top the cast of seaman figuring in this lusty drama of London and the sea. Clark Gable and Hedy Lamarr engage in rough-and-tumble battles in "Comrade X," the second picture that has its locale in Russia. Miss Lamarr plays a woman streetcar conductor and Gable is the newspaperman who crosses her path.

GEN. JOHNSON: Charges Forced Booking of 'Propaganda'

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON—Publication of the complete detail of the sketchily disclosed coming compact with Mexico should be of considerable interest to the American people.

Johnson

The interest will be largely academic. We may get our pants taken off, but there is nothing much we can do about it. We rarely make treaties any more, as provided by the constitution. We don't because they have to be ratified by the senate where the people do have a voice. So we make "agreements" and "lease-lend" and, no matter what that costs our family, we can't do anything or even say very much about it, because our administration says they are not treaties.

As announced we are going to make a "loan" to the Mexican government of between fifty and one hundred million dollars and that will make everything hunky-dorey. Just what the "loan" is to be for is not very clear but there is a good deal of talk about Mexico making "token payments" for her "expropriation" of American farm and petroleum properties in Mexico.

To refresh your memory, Mexico just "took over" a lot of Americans' farms and oil properties in Mexico without any offer of compensation. The policy of our state department was, and has remained, a temperate application of international law.

"Under international law," said Secretary Hull, "the expropriated properties of American nationals must be paid for by compensation, representing fair, assured and effective value of the properties taken * * * the legality of the expropriation is in fact dependent on the observance of this requirement * * * the taking of property without compensation is not expropriation. It is confiscation. It is no less confiscation because there may be an expressed intent to pay at some time in the future."

There is hardly an observer, including our state department, who does not recognize that the Mexican government is certainly incapable of making compensation of "fair, assured and effective value" of the seized properties. Various estimates run as high as half a billion.

"Token payments" of a fraction of fifty to one hundred millions, taken out of the pockets of American tax-payers and offered to these American proprietors to "appease" Mexico by a sleight of hand political maneuver is a ghastly hypocricy.

It wasn't American property alone that was confiscated. Most of these properties were British and Dutch. All three governments refused to recognize this hi-jacking and the British severed diplomatic relations. "Unity" in opposition to Hitler is as much a British as an American objective. Are we going to "appease" Mexico for Britain also by charging the cost of this confiscation of British property to American tax-payers? It would be just as absurd and inconsistent as the present rumored proposal.

We are, and I think properly, insisting on traditional American rights on the high seas. Are we going to abandon our insistence on American rights in international trade on any such honey-fuggling as this?

If once our forthright insistence on the maintenance of international law and against foreign gangsterism and thuggery is weakened by any such surrender as is here suggested our position in trade the world over and, especially throughout this hemisphere, is endangered.

If Mexico can freely confiscate our oil properties, so necessary in war, why can't Venezuela—and why won't she? Where is any American property safe?

Something smells here If I were as realistic and accurate as my namesake, the great lexicographer Samuel Johnson. I would say, "Something stinks here," but I won't, because this column must maintain its high reputation for delicate and highly perfumed rhetoric.

LORAIN PLANT FACES LOSS OF AFL WORKERS

Defeated Union Men Told They Are Needed Elsewhere as CIO Continues Strike.

(By Associated Press)

LORAIN—The American Ship Building company's CIO-struck Lorain yard faced today the prospect of losing its idle AFL workers to other cities in need of skilled craftsmen.

Equally-vital CIO members declared, meanwhile, they would not return to work on navy net tenders and two 17,000-ton ore freighters until assured of a local election among the 1,100 workers for bargaining rights. The AFL on Aug. 29 defeated the CIO in balloting totaled from all the concern's seven Great Lakes yards.

The AFL, which ordered its members to stay away from the yard after two picket line melees, summoned them to a meeting tonight to decide a course of action "We need lots of men in fear of their lives," declared other places—where they pay better and the men are not in James McWeeny, AFL boilermakers' official from Cleveland.

CIO representatives also called a mass meeting.

Walter Pollard, OPM representative seeking a settlement, declared migrations would be "wholly contrary" to the Great Lakes stabilization agreement reached recently at Chicago, and designed to prevent men from moving from yard to yard.

Many of the striking CIO members originally belonged to the AFL, including Frank Domanski, president of the striking local of the CIO Marine and Shipbuilding Workers. Domanski said:

"All the AFL ever got for us was a pay cut. Even when we wanted the company to give us salt tablets in hot weather, the AFL did nothing. The men had to fight for them. We don't want the AFL in that shipyard."

International leaders of the union agreed to the consent election but Domanski declared "nobody from our local signed. We made it plain all along we didn't want a plant-wide election. We'll go back tomorrow if they'll consent to an election here."

The AFL's McWeeny countered "we won the election fair and square and we aren't going to let tha yard open again until things are right, whether it's a week, or a month, or even two years."

Deputy Sheriff John Whitcomb admits his badly swollen and discolored right eye "looks suspicious," but he insists it wasn't the result of an encounter with an unruly prisoner. Whitcomb said the "shiner" was there when he awoke a couple of mornings ago, and the doctor told him it was the result of irritating dust in the air or something he had rubbed into the eye from his hand. At any rate, the officer thinks answering questions about it and taking a ribbing from his friends is almost as bad as the pain.

SENATOR SAYS THEATERS HAD TO TAKE FILMS

Willkie Lashes at Nye For 'Reckless and Unsupported Charges' In Session.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Chairman Clark (D-Idaho) declared today that the senate subcommittee investigating war propaganda had information indicating that many independent theater operators had been forced to book motion pictures which Clark labeled "propaganda."

As Clark promised that these allegations would be examined, Wendell L. Willkie took Senator Nye (R-N.D.) to task for making "reckless and unsupported charges" against the movie industry in the inquiry's opening session yesterday.

Willkie, acting as counsel for the film industry, asserted that "the request of Senators Nye and Bennett Clark (D-Mo.) for an investigation shields a desire to use the perogatives of a senate committee to fight a rear guard action against a foreign policy (of the administration) which the senate as a whole, has overwhelmingly approved."

Clark of Missouri was the first witness called by the subcommittee today. Willkie said that after Clark and other foes of administration foreign policy had been heard, he hoped "that the committee may be able to get down to the facts in the case."

Meanwhile, Chairman Clark, discussing the reports of forced movie bookings, said that his subcommittee would include an inquiry into alleged monopolistic practices in the motion picture industry in its investigation of charges of war propaganda films.

Clark said that independent theater owners might be forced to show so-called propaganda films because he said they had to rent all their motion pictures from the large concerns which he declared controlled more than 50 per cent of the movie showhouse seating capacity in the country.

"If there is a practical monopoly in the motion picture business," he asserted, "it is in a position to foster the most devastating sort of propaganda on the people."

During yesterday's hearing, Nye identified he had been informed that an agent of the government, who he did not name, had "demanded" that the motion picture studios produce "propaganda" films. Under questioning by Senator McFarland (D-Ariz.) Nye insisted he had "excellent foundation" for this report but declined to name the government agent involved of the movie producer he said had told him about the incident.

This portion of Nye's testimony drew Willkie's fire as a "fanciful concoction."

"Of course," said the 1940 Republican presidential nominee in his statement, "Senator Nye has no proof of this for the simple reason that the charge is completely untrue."

SNAKE RITUAL VICTIM SERIOUS

Prosecution Threatened When Cult Keeps Woman From Hospital After Bite.

(By United Press)

PINEVILLE, Ky.—Pretty Mrs. Sarah Hoskins Howard, 19-year-old member of a Kentucky religious sect that handles snakes in its services, was in a critical condition today as a result of a rattlesnake bite.

Physicians declared that Mrs. Howard's condition was critical and that she needed a blood transfusion "very badly." Attending physicians said her arm was swollen twice its normal size and has burst open in several places. Little chance was given for her to live.

Meanwhile, the girl's father, Nate Hoskins, and her brother, Rufus Hoskins, said they intended to prosecute "the persons responsible" even if Mrs. Howard did not die and that if she died they would prosecute for murder.

Mrs. Howard was bitten Friday night while attending religious services at a Lynch, Ky., church. Despite the fact that her condition gradually grew more serious after being bitten, members of the cult refused to allow her to be taken to a hospital, disdained all efforts to give her medical attention and continued to hold services at her East Pineville home.

The use of snakes at church services has been fairly common among certain sects in the eastern Kentucky mountain region. Their handling is looked upon by members as a test of faith.

The brother declared the victim's husband, Art Howard, although a member of the sect, finally was instrumental in getting her to go to a hospital for treatment. With other sect members he, too, had refused at first to allow his wife to see a physician but finally consented Sunday.

YOUTH TAKES OWN LIFE USING INGENIOUS 'MURDER SETTING'

NASHVILLE, Tenn —(FP)—Police decided today that 15-year-old Justin Potter, jr., son of a coal company president, had killed himself with such an ingenious gun arrangement that he almost convinced everyone he had been murdered.

His body was found in a field A bullet had pierced his brain. Death obviously was instantaneous and there was no gun in sight.

This is how he achieved that effect:

He chose a spot by an old storm sewer, resembling a well, which had a ledge five feet high around it, as the scene of his death. Around the barrel of the gun—an old revolver of his grandfather's—he wrapped a handkerchief and put a rubber band around it to keep it in place. He tied four shoestrings together, attached one end of this line to a 10-pound rock and the other end to the trigger of the gun. He lay both gun and rock on the sewer wall, held the gun barrel to his temple and pushed the rock into the well with his elbow.

The handkerchief evidently was supposed to prevent powder burns. The rock served the double purpose of firing the gun and pulling it down into the sewer.

When his body was found, in a field denuded by fire, with his bicycle lying a few feet away, police decided at first glance that he had been slain while riding. They were starting a hunt for the "killer" when they noticed powder burns on the boy's hands—the handkerchief had not served its purpose. A search of the boy's clothes revealed the shoestring wrappers. Their suspicions aroused by these clues, police searched the sewer, found the gun, and were able to reconstruct the suicide.

Authorities said no inquest would be held.

Auto Club Sets Up Best Times To Obtain Driver Licenses.

With the sale of drivers' licenses mounting steadily and applicants crowding the office, Frank Beverstock, deputy registrar of the Richland County Auto club, urged motorists to make application during early morning or later afternoon hours, instead of between the 11 a. m. to 1 p m lunch hours.

He pointed out that due also to a shortage of help at this time, good service is curtailed. Beverstock said that the best times for buying licenses are between 8:30 a. m. and 11 a. m., or between 1 p. m., and 5 p. m.

Auto club records showed that 578 drivers' licenses were issued yesterday, and 47 chauffeurs' licenses making a total of 625 licenses issued during the day.

If you should happen to be looking for a flock of nice little gentlemen, a professional football team would probably be the last happy hunting ground you'd pick out, but you can have it on the word of Earl the Squirrel McMullen that you need look no farther than the Mansfield City News gridders to find all the gentlemen you'd want up to the 24 members of the squad.

"We have a tough row to hoe to sell our brand of entertainment to the public," explains McMullen, "and being tough and profane doesn't help our hoeing. The fans in the stand don't go for a lot of loud profanity from the players on the field.

"So the first thing I impress on my players is that profanity and dirty playing are out. After that we get down to playing football as it should be played.

"One cuss word during practice means one extra lap around the track after practice, and that penalty has served to blot out profanity from our squad. The boys don't like to run those extra laps."

* * *

You can see the boys would be saps
To pile on themselves those extra laps.

* * *

"One kid started cussing in Hungarian the other day," says McMullen. "I didn't know what it meant, but I had a good idea.

"So I told him: That is worth three laps in any language.

"And he took the three laps without a word of complaint."

There's a lad in town named Myers who played last season with the Columbus Bullies professional team but who's laid up now with a trick knee.

He's been going out to watch the City News club work out the last few evenings and he has nothing but praise for the Mansfield semi-pros.

"I've never seen such good organization on a semi-pro team," declares Myers. "And the work those kids put out! We didn't work half that hard on the Bullies."

I see by the papers that Hank Edwards, former Mansfield Brave outfielder who's been leading the Three-I league in hitting with Cedar Rapids, is to report to the Cleveland Indians tomorrow. And all Mansfield is hoping that Hank will spank that apple in the big time in the same way he's been doing in the Three-I.

Coaches Prepare Moans

Battle of Crying Towels Looms For Ohio Football.

By LARRY NEWMAN.

COLUMBUS —(INS)— As uncertain as a political campaign promise or the weather on Sunday school picnic day, the Ohio collegiate football season just ahead looms today as a battle of crying towels.

* * *

Every coach from millsaps to siwash has abandoned the old stereotyped sob story of injured knees, sprained ankles and chilblains for the new favorite of "caught in the draft." That's right, the draft and defense industries hold the secret to the Buckeye grid campaigns on 37 collegiate fronts this season.

Not until the first games are played and recorded will the worrying mentors know just what they're going to have this season. But at the present moment—coaches' statements not withstanding—several teams line up as the likely successors to the 1940 Ohio conference champion from Wittenberg to the mythical state champion and Sun Bowl winner from Western Reserve.

Kent State won seven out of eight starts last season and has 24 squadmen returning for action this year so the Golden Flashes earn the questionable honor of pre-season favorite in the unwieldly Ohio conference. Coach Rosy Starn had a strong varsity in 1940 and combined with a rugged bunch of freshmen, the Flashes may come home in front in the conference.

With Western Reserve's great team shattered by graduation plus the loss of Coach Bill Edwards, prospects of another state champ and bowl bid are slight for the Clevelanders. However, new Coach Tom Davies is an old campaigner and should take over quickly where the irrepressible Edwards let off.

Wittenberg, winner of eight consecutive starts in 1940, has been wrecked by graduation and the draft. Bill Stobbs is yelling louder than ever and swears he'll be happy if he has 11 boys on the field when the Lutherans open against Howard Kissell's team at Muskingum on Oct. 3.

On the other hand, Case, one of 1940's stronger teams, has maintained most of its past strength and added to a strong freshmen team may be the surprise outfit of the league.

Denison coached by Tommy Rogers and Sid Gillman, has bright prospects for the year. With 15 lettermen returning on a strong squad of 45, the Big Red shouldn't have too much trouble winning the majority of nine games, including seven conference starts.

Another strong contender for conference and state-wide honors is Baldwin-Wallace. The Bereans won four and lost the same number in 1940 but lost only two backs and four linemen from last year's entire squad and has a fine group of newcomers on the big squad of 39 invited to the first practice by Coach Ray Watts. Most likely of the newcomers to break into big print early is John Willis, a bone-crushing fullback from Lorain who enters collegiate circles touted as one of the best backs in Ohio scholastic history.

The University of Cincinnati and Dayton have strong squads but face difficult schedules. Both meet Tennessee while the Bearcats also list Carnegie Tech, Centre and Boston University. Head Coach Joe Meyer has lost several boys in the draft and although 16 lettermen are returning—he'll need them to withstand the rigors of a very difficult and ambitions nine-game schedule.

There are several new coaches entering the fold and may come up with strong elevens. Bob Whittaker, the former Sandusky high school mentor, has taken over at Bowling Green State and indications point to a better-than-average season there if everything clicks. Howard Kissell has transferred from Findlay college to Muskingum and may be able to mold nine lettermen into a light but fast contingent.

Other new gridiron bosses include Otis Douglas, who succeeded Tommy Dowler at Akron; and Virgil Bingham took over the reins relinquished by Dr N. M. Jorgenson at Defiance college.

There are several intersectional highligtts on this year's schedule. Of course Joe Meyer and his Cincinnati Bearcats lead this list with tilts with Tennessee, Boston University, Centre and Carnegie Tech while Miami takes on Illinois at Champaign on Oct. 4. Doc Spears will direct his University of Toledoans in nine games, seven of which are against out-of-state opponents while Xavier has a bright contest on Nov. 29 in the Queen City when Georgetown of Washington, D. C., closes the season for both teams

Akron Eliminated From Playoffs

AKRON —(INS)— The Akron Yanks, pre-tournament favorites, today were eliminated in the mid-Atlantic league playoffs when the Canton Terriers took the rubber game of the best out-of-five series, 8-5, last night at League park.

* * *

A wild free-for-all, in which all members of both teams traded punches, broke out in the first of the ninth when Canton scored two runs to break a 5-5 deadlock. A crew of police finally halted the fighting and Lee Mohr, Terrier second baseman, and Gus Niarmos, Akron catcher, were sent to the showers.

* * *

Canton now meets the Erie, Pa., Sailors for the championship.

Miami Builds Soph Squad

Lack of Vets Forces Use of Beginners.

OXFORD, O.—(AP)—Sophomores are getting the bulk of attention at Miami University, where Coach Frank Wilton is busy trying to whip the green material into shape for the opening game with invading Hanover of Indiana Sept. 20.

Miami had one of its best freshman squads last year and Wilton will be forced to draw heavily upon them due to a dearth of veterans.

Four players who didn't win letters last year and Warren Rockwell of Lakewood, who played as a sophomore two years ago but wasn't in school last fall, augmented the squad. Nonlettermen are: Guard Tom Ashton of Youngstown, Center Marvin Ault of North College Hill, Back Charles Diver of West Middletown and Tackle Will Rogers of Steubenville.

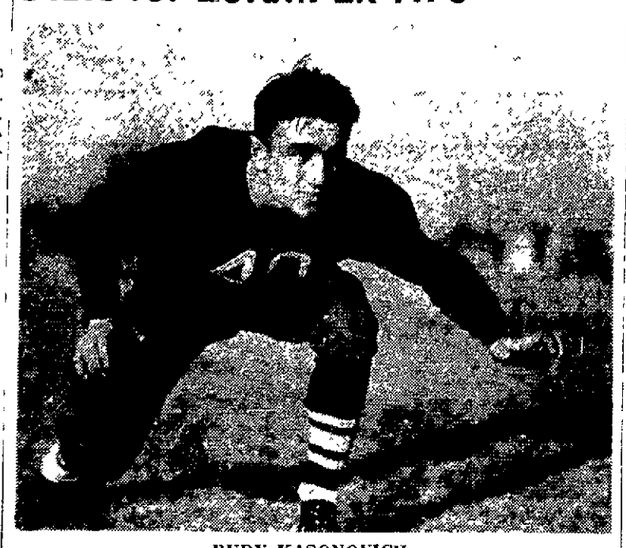
* * *

Returning lettermen are: Backs Robert Harrod of Lima, Ted Migdal of Akron, and Dan Sshisler of Vermilion; Guards James Lawrence of Loveland, Howard Hinrichs of Winnetka, Ill., and Don Morgan of Findlay, tackles Guy Grafmiller of Cuyahoga Falls, Emerson Guinn of Oxford and Charles Moos of Lorain, and End Jack Meier of Norwood. ... .

* * *

Outstanding sophomores expected to make strong bids for regular births this season include: Backs Fred Redeker of Cincinnati, Carl Terry of Ironton, Ronald Hassler of Attica, Jim Bussard of Miamisburg, Bob Harris of Cleveland, and Franklin Shands of Lockland; tackles Ed Kostic of Stratford, Conn., and Bob Gehliker of Norwood; End Nick Sabath of Cleveland and Guard Jim Krause of Loudonville.

Stars for Lorain Ex-Hi's



RUDY KASONOVICH

This six foot, one inch, 190-pound end is one of the outstanding stars of the Lorain Ex-Hi semi-pro football club that will meet the City News gridders in the opening game of the Mansfield football season Saturday night at the Fairground.

Mansfield Pros Open Season With Saturday Night Game

The 1941 football season opens for Mansfield Saturday night when the City News pros lift the seasonal lid at the Fairground against the Lorain Ex-Hi club.

The Mansfield pros have been practicing five nights a week for the past several weeks, and are rapidly rounding into shape for a long, tough schedule of games.

Probable starting lineup for the Mansfielders will be: Lucky and Russel, ends, "Toar" Dials and Sturgeon tackles, Schwarner and Zediker guards, Lehman, center, Powell, Al Schwarner, Joe Popovec and Elmer Dials, backs.

The lineup includes two college stars of last year, Joe Popovec of Earlham, and Powell, Toledo Waite boy who played with Wilberforce.

Players who probably will see a lot of action in the opener include Gaylord Bucher, all-Ohio high school guard several years ago with the Mansfield Tygers, Russ Beer, Jack Miles, Steve Popovec, Alec Radovich, and Harker Au.

The Lorain team also has its stars. Outstanding are Rudy Kasonovich, Lorain high star in 1935 and '36 who played for the Minerva semi-pros two seasons, Eugene Hartley, 190-pound former Lorain high end, Wee Willie Davis who was picked on the all-Ohio high school team last season from the Lorain high backfield, and Martin Bart, a consistent ground gainer who performed for Lorain high in the backfield in 1936 and '37.

The Lorain line averages 185 pounds and the backfield over 170.

Ken Lockhart, backfield star with the Mansfield pros for several years, is assisting Coach Earl McMullen in tutoring the City News squad.

* * *

The game, under the Fairground lights Saturday night is booked for 8:15.

Weather Crimps Cardinals

Rain Washes Out Both St. Louis and Brooklyn.

(By Associated Press)

RAIN falls on the rich and poor alike and it was an impartial storm that washed out both the Brooklyn Dodgers and the St. Louis Cardinals yesterday.

Neither team liked it because the downpour created two doubleheaders today — the Dodgers at Chicago and the Phillies at St. Louis—right on the threshold of the vitally-important three-game clash of the National league leaders with each other.

The weatherman by a slight slip at this stage of the crucial competition in the senior circuit could crush the Cardinals virtually out of sight. Trailing by three games, they need to have every contest played in order to maintain their opportunity of catching up.

* * *

If anything should prevent today's encounters they would be wiped off the schedule. If all contests are played, and St. Louis spurts to capture 16 of its remaining 21 games, Brooklyn still could win by taking 13 of its remaining 19.

Except for the contests involving the two National league leaders all other games yesterday were reeled off on schedule.

Babe Young his his 23rd and 24th homers to earn a 4-2 victory for the New York Giants over the Pittsburgh Pirates. The Cincinnati Reds clustered six runs in the third inning to bag a free-swinging battle from the Boston Braves, 9-7, for Bucky Walters' 17th win.

In the American league Bobby Feller obtained his 23rd triumph with nine-hit pitching as the Cleveland Indians overpowered the Philadelphia Athletics, 13-7.

* * *

The New York Yankees squeezed to a 1-0 victory over the St. Louis Browns as Joe DiMaggio returned to the lineup of the American league champions for the first time since he twisted an ankle Aug. 19.

Dick Newsome pitched four-hit ball to shut out the Detroit Tigers, 6-0, for the Boston Red Sox, and the Washington Senators whipped the Chicago White Sox, 7-2.

NEW COACH SIGNS

TIFFIN —(INS)— George A Brown, of Columbus, today took over as assistant football and basketball coach and head baseball coach at Heidelberg college, succeeding Jim Fingerhut, who resigned last week. Brown is a graduate at New York university.

Mansfield Boy Goes to Majors

PITTSBURGH —(AP)— The Pittsburgh Pirates today announced the acquisition of two promising outfielders, Johnny Barrett of the Hollywood Stars, and John Wyrostek, a St. Louis Cardinal farmhand who has been playing recently with New Orleans of the Southern Association.

* * *

The Bucs, seeking left handed hitters, gave cash for the two and also promised Hollywood in the Pacific Coast league another player by next May.

Barrett, 23, of Lowell, Mass., bats left handed and throws right-handed. He hit .318 in 124 games, including 23 doubles, 13 triples and four home runs. He started with Mansfield, O.

Climaxing the outdoor season for North Central Ohio marksmen the Galion rifle club will sponsor an outdoor tournament Sunday, Sept. 28, on its range.

* * *

The match will be open to any shooters in the North Central Ohio region and will "probably include a women's and juniors match this year," said L. A. Arntz, secretary of the Mansfield Gasco club.

Clarence Tuller of Bucyrus is the champion shot this year and he will defend his title in all events.

Competition will be in Dewar 50 and 100 yard iron sights. Dewar 50 and 100 yard any sights, with 40 shots at 50 meters.

Rubber Bowl Racers Roll

Will Attempt Second Double Bill Tomorrow.

AKRON — Washed out by a downpour at starting time last week, midget auto racers tomorrow at 8:30 p. m. will attempt to present their second double-bill program at Rubber Bowl stadium here.

* * *

Two 25-lap features will top the nine event card with 14 cars starting in handicap style in the Class B feature and ten going in regulation order in the 25-lap Class A event.

The handicap start was introduced here last month for the first time in the Midwest. Half way through it eight of the tiny racers had already flipped, crashed or smacked hay bales and gone out of action.

Heading the list of entries for tomorrow night's nine race card is Al Bonnell of Erie, Pa., 1939 Ohio banked track champion who won the flat track honors last year. Bonnell broke the Rubber Bowl track record and the all time mark at Sportsman's park speedway near Bedford in his last two starts. Time trials tomorrow night begin promptly at 7 p. m.

Last week's tickets will be honored as rainchecks tomorrow, promoters asserted.

OHIOAN LEADS BEARS TO PRO-FOOTBALL WIN

NEW YORK —(INS)— The Chicago Bears, world professional football champions, held a 14 to 9 decision over the Brooklyn Dodgers today, with George McAfee, of Ironton, O., formerly of Duke, rated as the oustanding star of last night's exhibition game between the two teams.

Louisville, Columbus Win

Colonels and Red Birds Take Association Playoffs.

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Louisville, the team with only two hitters over .300, the outfit that finished fourth in the American association in 1939 and 1940 and then took the Governors' cup playoff series both years, is kicking up a fuss again in this year's post-season series.

* * *

Behind a capable pitching staff the Colonels finished second in the season just ended. While first-place Columbus was matched with Kansas City in one half of the playoffs, the Louisville club drew fourth-place Minneapolis as its opponent. Columbus won its first game 6 to 1.

* * *

In the opening game of the series last night, the Colonels treated the Millers to a 3 to 1 lead in the first four innings and then brought home three runs in the seventh for a 4 to 3 victory.

* * *

The champion Columbus Red Birds had little trouble behind two-hit pitching by Johnnie Grodzicki. They nicked George Barley, the Blues' starting hurler, and Charles Wensloff, his successor, for double runs in each of the first, fifth and seventh frames. Meanwhile Grodzicki was stingy with his hits and yielded only three walks. He also hit one batter.

* * *

Grodzicki won 19 and lost 5 during the regular season.

Chicago Team Gets New Passer

KENOSHA, Wis. — (INS) — Although the Navy moved in to claim "Passin' Paul" Christman from them last week, the Chicago Cardinals appeared well fortified in the passing department today in the person of young Ray Mallouf, a fancy flinger in his own right.

* * *

By Virtue of Mallouf's accurate throwing, the Chicago eleven escaped defeat by the Kenosha Cardinals in an exhibition football game last night, and wound up with a 21-21 tie after having trailed by 21 to 7 at the half.

* * *

Mallouf tossed two touchdown passes in the third quarter, one a short heave to Marshall Goldberg who dashed 58 yards to paydirt, and the other a 16-yard aerial to John Hall, who ran 61 yards to score. Chicagos first touchdown, in the second quarter, also was engineered by Mallouf, whose 18-yard toss to Frank Ivy set up the score.

Win Phalanx Golf Tournament

Jack Hannon, Dick Huffman, John Culler and Dean Robinson won places on the Phalanx fraternitys delegation to the state convention last Sunday by winning a fraternity golf tournament at Possum Run golf course.

Charles Gompf, organization spokesman, said the four golfers won over a field of 14 and would journey to Salem Sept. 20.

Art Rhodes, continued Gompf, won the consolation award.

17-YEAR-OLD JOCKEY RIDES FOUR HORSES TO VICTORY

drew, 17-year-old jockey, was the hero of Chicago racing fans today following his feat in riding four straight winners at Hawthorne park.

McAndrew's grand slam was accomplished despite a series of cloudbursts which at times made a river of the track. In the first race he brought home the favorite, More Refined, by seven lengths. In the second his winner was Alcinous; in the third, Sir Kid by a neck, and in the fourth, Little Red Fox by a safe three lengths.

LEADING STOCKS TACK ON SMALL MARKET GAINS

Improvement Well Distributed Despite Fact Commodities Are Unsettled.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Leading stocks tacked on small gains today as market followers continued to keep a watchful eye on commodities. Improvement in shares was fairly well distributed although a number of rails, motors and oils failed to muster much recovery power.

Commodities were unsettled by active selling attributed to Secretary Morgenthau's proposal for release from storage of existing large supplies of food products.

Receiving attention was the weekly report of the American Petroleum institute showing gasoline stocks in eastern seaboard territory down 523,000 barrels for the period. The weekly outturn of electric power dropped 5 per cent under the perceding week but ran 19.4 per cent ahead of the 1940 comparative.

DESCRIBE U. S. SHIP SINKING

Survivors Tell How Plane Hit Freighter With Flag Plainly Visible.

garding details of the attack. But one of them, who asked to remain unidentified, said to me:

"There can be no suggestion that the plane which attacked us mistook us for a British ship or one of another nationality.

"Our flag was in the light of our floodlights and the light of a full moon. It was clearly visible and identifiable. It is our own belief that the plane was sent to attack the Steel Seafarer to prevent her reaching port. It accomplished that. It was, in our belief, a deliberate attack against the American flag.

Chief Officer Pratt, brown-eyed, light-haired, bronzed, stocky, a seafaring type, told me:

"I was asleep when the attack began but I didn't stay that way long. I could not be sure whether one or two bombs struck but to the best of my knowledge it was like this:

"The plane came over. It's motors cut off. We had no warning of its intention to attack. It glided in and down until it was only about 150 feet above our mastheads. Then it let loose its load.

"There was a terrific explosion. It seemed to raise the Seafarer about three feet out of the water. With one shoe and one slipper on, and nothing else, I ran for the bridge.

"All the lights had gone. We were in complete darkness inside the ship except for flashlights. It could have been either a bomb or a torpedo which hit us. In view of the great column of water that went about 75 feet above us, it may have been a heavy calibre bomb which scored a near miss and shattered the starboard side, destroying one of our oil fuel tanks.

"After reaching the island we learned that the explosion had been heard 10 miles away. There was no fire but the ship started to heel over at once and to settle.

"We were definitely not in a convoy, although we had been with two other ships. We spent all night in a heavy running sea attempting to make land. At 11 a. m. our boats arrived after a mighty tough voyage.

"Except for those on duty at the time of the sinking all hands were undressed and we lost everything."

Miss Ruby Knick, 8 years old, daughter of Mr. Charles Knick, of 423 First street, Piqua, Ohio, states:
